honors

City of Lowell

with our “Actions Give Meaning To Words” award. In 2007 the City of Lowell joined EPA New England’s Community Energy Challenge, committing to reduce municipal emissions by 10%. The City also endorsed the U. S. Mayors Climate Protection Agreement, agreeing to meet or beat the Kyoto Protocol targets in Lowell. The Lowell Green Building Commission has issued an impressive report containing recommendations for green programs and incentives for privately owned buildings in the City. The City is putting into practice what is preached, including at the regional waste water facility, upgrades in lighting at garage facilities, use of LED traffic signals and recognizing the good work of the private and the non-profit sectors. Doing the right thing is an every day, every year activity. The City of Lowell – Mayor, Council, staff and citizens – All are doing the right thing! Thank you for your environmental leadership.
